授業の目標 (Course Objectives)

The course will analyze the nature of effective leadership in a changing world and help students develop the knowledge and skills that result in responsible action (not all effective leadership is responsible). By completing the course, students will enhance their individual leadership capacity in the following areas:

the model of adaptive leadership, leading without authority (influence), implementing different types of decision-making depending on the situation, handling adversity and building personal resilience for challenging times, the role of followers when confronted with a toxic (unethical) leader, effective action that results in positive difference, and the framework of invitational leadership that enables leaders to bring out the best in others.

授業の内容 (Course Contents)

Each class will highlight a different dimension of effective global leadership using a variety of learning activities including documentary films, case studies, and simulations. Examples and activities will represent different cultural contexts and walks of life to address leadership holistically, including the personal and professional. Students will apply insights learned from analytical frameworks and group discussion to operational leadership and the specific settings in which students live and work. Our challenge is to become lifelong learners of leadership, and consider how we can develop our own and others' leadership capacity to take effective and responsible action in a world of exponential change.
